TEACHERS TOLD PARENTS SHIRK ON DISCIPLINE

"The theories of some educators that children should not be disciplined are being used by parents to escape the responsibility of parenthood," Robert Kazmayer, Utica, N. Y., news commentator told the Adams county teachers' institute Friday afternoon at the closing sessions of the two day affair.

The statement brought a round of applause and laughter from the teachers which led Kazmayer to add that "behind that laughter you can hear the footsteps of the pallbearers of history. We need discipline and we need it badly if we are to survive as a nation. All history records the rise of nations to eminence, and their fall. When the people become soft, when they train their children, as we do, for pleasure, when they cast off self discipline—then the decline begins.

"A nation is a living organism and like all living organisms it cannot remain still. It is either developing into something greater—or it is declining into the limbo of forgotten civilizations."

Not Teachers' Job Alone

Kazmayer urged the teachers to "present a united front to the parents, saying that the rearing of children may not be placed on the teachers alone. It takes the parent, the church and the community to train children. But for years the teachers have been gradually forced to do everything, as lazy parents (Continued on page 3)

Mount Students Raid Catholic U.

On a dare from Catholic university in Washington, issued by leaflets dropped over Mount St. Mary's college campus, Emmitsburg, by airplane on Thursday, approximately 180 Mount students raided the university in Washington Friday morning at four o'clock and took the student body there completely by surprise.

Information beforehand revealed to Mount St. Mary's students the position of the Catholic U. sentries and they were all reported hit at the same time and bound and gagged. From the sentry positions, the Mountaineers seized the switchboard in the administration building and tied the doors in the dormitories shut.

Fires inscribing "M." were set on the campus and paint was used also. Having held the control of the campus for an hour and forty-five minutes, students from the Mount captured some prisoners while Catholic U. did the same.

The raid was made preliminary to a football game which is scheduled between the two rivals.

New Oxford Man Makes Hobby Of Old Clocks; Has More Than 100 In Valuable Collection

MOST OF THEM RUN AND KEEP ACCURATE TIME

Mr. and Mrs. John Myers, of New Oxford, are one couple who have plenty of "time." Their attractive brick home on Lincolnway West contains more than 100 clocks, large, small and in-between, and at any hour, on the hour, day or night, but more particularly at noon and again at midnight, their home is a miniature bedlam of tuneful noise as these 100-odd timepieces begin striking.

Mr. Myers, who is now in his 37th year in the grocery business in New Oxford at the same location, doesn't know, without going about the house and making a detailed count, how many clocks he has, nor will he place a value on his collection. He knows that it is a valuable one, but just how valuable even he says he doesn't know.

This hobby of collecting clocks began when Mr. Myers was an eight-year-old boy living near New Chester. He and his father, Eli Myers, went to a sale. A clock of the type commonly referred to as "O-Gee" was put up for sale.

Gets First Clock

"Who'll give me a dollar?" the auctioneer pleaded. When there were no offers, he said: "Do I hear 50 cents?" Still the crowd was silent.

Young John tugged at his father's coat.

"I want a clock. Buy me that clock," he said.

"Five cents," the elder Mr. Myers said.

"Sold."

And young John went home the proud possessor of the first clock in what was destined to grow into a collection filling every room of his home now, and even the cellar.

With Mr. and Mrs. Myers, it is now "their" hobby, for both love clocks and the collecting of old timekeepers. Recently they have had the greater part of their collection photographed, and the pictures are now in a leather-bound "album" or "catalog" nicely mounted in "windows." The outside front cover of the book has these words embossed on it:

TIME OUR HOBBY

Ruth and John

There are 34 beautiful "grandfather" clocks in various rooms of the Myers home. Others include French 30-hour clocks, English bracket, or table clocks, sharp Gothic, steeple and double steeple, banjo, "O-Gee," Ripple Bee Hive, and the Terry-type clocks with pillars and scrolls, as well as other styles and designs. One of the strangest is a water clock.

Mr. Myers thinks that his grandfather clocks which were made in Pennsylvania "are about the nicest."

"They didn't go in for as much inlay work on the clock cabinets, but I think they are very nice," he says. And he backs up his opinion by keeping these Pennsylvania grandfathers in the choicest location of all, the front room of his home.

The water clock, one of the oddest in the entire Myers collection, hangs on the wall of the stairway leading to the second floor. It is of hammered brass, and was made by James Colledridge at Newport, on the Isle of Wight, in 1640. On the clock are engraved these words:

"Domine, Dirige nos, Lord Directus."

All 100 Years Old

This, Mr. Myers says, is the motto (Please turn to page 7)

DR. FRY, ULCA HEAD, TALKS ON 'STEWARDSHIP'

A call for "double discipleship" was issued Friday evening by Dr. Franklin Clark Fry, president of the United Lutheran Church in America, in his address before a stewardship conference of Lutheran pastors and lay leaders of this area. The session, one of hundreds now in progress throughout the United States and Canada, was held at St. James Lutheran church. Dr. Ralph R. Gresh is pastor of the church.

"Calls are coming from all sections of America and the entire world for the church to act now," Dr. Fry said. "To mark 1948, the 30th anniversary of the United Lutheran Church in America, we have set before ourselves a goal to give our church a doubled budget—double $2,750,000 next year—for its work in the colleges, seminaries, American missions, foreign missions, and evangelism.

Need "Double Gifts"

"This anniversary is one chance for the double goal," the church president said, "and under God, we plan to accept it and to demonstrate our loyalty and our love and find a lasting joy. This is a call for double discipleship which would naturally lead to double gifts."

Dr. Fry reviewed the calls upon the church from communities that have no church; from overcrowded colleges, seminaries, and deaconess motherhouses; from foreign missions that need pastors, medical missionaries, and equipment to replace the worn-out or that destroyed by war. "There is a terrible urgency for every Christian to act now," he said. Dr. Fry stressed that every congregation must conduct the Every Member Visit if every one of the church's 1,300,000 confirmed members is to be called upon to deliver the financial strength the church needs at once.

The program was arranged by Dr. Gresh who also served as chairman of the conference. More than 300 ministers and laymen attended.

J.

Dr. David I. Thompson, Abbottstown, and Dr. Allen W. Kelly, East Berlin, treated McMaster for possible fractured ribs. Hahn for a bump on the head and contusions and Mrs. Hahn for shock and contusions. McMaster was thrown from the truck by the force of the collision. Damage was estimated at $350. The state police are continuing their investigation.

BAN OFF, PUBLIC URGED TO EAT MORE POULTRY

Washington, Nov. 8 (P)—Victorious poultry men hailed the end of poultryless Thursday today with a call for the public to eat more instead of fewer chickens.

Pledged to save 56,000,000 bushels of grain by reducing the size of their flocks, the growers faced the problem of peddling 136,000,000 birds between now and Jan. 1 in the face of huge cold storage supplies already on hand.

In a joint statement with Secretary of Agriculture Anderson, the Citizens Food Committee headed by Charles Luckman last night called an immediate "moratorium" on the poultryless days while retaining the Thursday ban on eggs.

Tremendous Pressure
In Los Angeles for ceremonies attending the start of a transcontinental "Friendship Train" with foodstuffs for overseas, Luckman said:

"This committee has been under tremendous pressure for several weeks to remove the ban on poultryless Thursday, but no agreement was reached until the poultry industry came up with a definite program showing where 56,000,000 bushels of grain could be saved."

The committee referred to its action as a suspension "while the new program is given a chance," but the betting around Washington was that poultryless Thursday was as dead as a cold storage duck.

Substitute Program
The poultry industry, in its substitute program, pledges to:

1. Reduce the number of broiler chicks one-third below normal seasonal levels by Jan. 31 and baby chick production for all purposes by 7 per cent between Feb. 1 and June 30 for a combined saving of 21,000,000 bushels of grain.
2. Cut the turkey hatch 12 per cent compared with 1947 levels for a 4,700,000 bushel saving.
3. Reduce duck production 15 per cent compared with 1947, saving 350,000 bushels.
4. Cull U. S. chicken flocks from 536,000,000 to 400,000,000 birds by Jan. 1, saving 30,000,000 bushels.

Biggest Saving Yet
The Anderson-Luckman announcement commented that "this is by far the largest saving from any single part of the current conservation drive thus far pledged."

Previous pledges by distillers, brewers, bakers and restaurateurs had totaled around 25,000,000 bushels.

One of the first poultry men heard from after the announcement was Monroe Babcock of Ithaca, N. Y., promoter of the "Hens For Harry" and "Leghorns For Luckman" gag which led to receipt of several crates of chickens at the White House and Food Committee headquarters this week.

"Our job now is to educate the public to the idea that chickens must be eaten," Babcock said.

COUNTIAN SENT TO EASTERN PEN

William Junior Metz, 22, of Orrtanna R. 1, who pleaded guilty in the Franklin county courts on September 19 to a serious charge was sentenced to serve 14 months to three years in Eastern penitentiary on Friday dating from September 4, the date of his arrest and confinement.

In passing sentence on the Adams man, who was arrested on an information filed by a Mont Alto mother, Judge Edmund C. Winger had before him the report of a recent mental examination Metz underwent at Harrisburg. After noting the seriousness of the crime, the jurist observed that Metz had previously been involved in moral offenses against young girls.

A 30-day sentence was imposed on Metz on a second charge—resisting an officer—filed by Constable H. M. Renfrew, of Fayetteville. The charge was filed by the constable after Metz escaped from him following arraignment on the morals count before a Fayetteville justice of the peace. The defendant subsequently was captured in Culpeper, Va., and waived extradition proceedings to be returned here.

District Attorney LeRoy S. Maxwell of Franklin county, reported that Metz had previously been a prisoner at the Huntingdon and Camp Hill industrial schools.

CORPORATION IS PROPOSED TO HANDLE US AID

Washington, Nov. 8 (P)—Congressional leaders who will tackle the foreign aid problem at the November 17 special session studied today a recommendation that the whole job be handed over to a single new government corporation.

The suggestion came from a 19-man special House Foreign Economic committee which toured Europe last summer for the background to work out the broad policies of the stop-Communism-in-Europe program.

The committee said the new agency should sift all requests for help in western Europe, boss the purchase of materials in this country, wield any controls necessary to protect the economy of the United States and make sure "that the aid reaches those for whom it is intended."

Carry Weight

The committee's recommendations were expected to carry heavy weight, since the group was formed at the insistence of Republican leaders who wanted Congress to obtain its own information to consider along with the administration's Marshall plan and stop-gap aid proposals.

They were made public late yesterday by Vice Chairman Herter (R-Mass) in the form of an informal interim report.

It proposed new government foreign aid corporation would be managed by a bi-partisan board of directors appointed by the president and confirmed by the Senate.

The committee pointed out that Congressional control over the board "would be maintained by the regular review of its funds and operations." In other words, Congress could abolish it at any time by failing to finance it.

COAST GUARD SEEKS STRICKEN LAKE FREIGHTER

Ludington, Mich., Nov. 8 (P)—A Coast Guard cutter battled 25 to 30 foot waves on Lake Michigan today in an attempt to reach the stricken freighter Jupiter, taking water and in danger of foundering with her crew of 28.

The coast guard said radio signals from the cutter Sundew were too weak to fix her position but that she was plowing from St. Joseph, Mich., northward toward shallow waters that endangered the Jupiter less than two miles from the Ludington beach.

Two Lake Michigan car ferries were standing by the 3,000-ton Jupiter prepared to throw her a line if the strong seas subsided.

Former "Ghost Ship"

High winds were moderating somewhat but at 6 a. m., message from the stricken vessel said she was taking on water and dragging her anchor. At that time the Jupiter's crew despaired of lasting out the hour.

However, at 7 a. m. she radioed that the immediate danger appeared over and that, unless she went aground, she would be able to hold out until the coast guard cutter arrived.

The Jupiter was known a few months back as the "ghost ship of the Great Lakes" because she was unable to land during a dispute with the CIO National Maritime union.

Hitchhiker Recovers Own Stolen Auto

Pittsburgh, Nov. 8 (P)—John Romero, of nearby Carnegie, a weary hitch-hiker, climbed gratefully into the car which pulled to the side of the road at his signal. Then he looked hard—the upholstery and a rip in the floor covering looked mighty familiar. It was his own car, stolen a week ago.

John, 21, grabbed a wrench he found in the back and demanded the driver show his owner's card. The card the man produced was made out to Romero. So Romero took over and brought both the car and its former driver to the police station.

Between 1939 and 1946, France had a population loss of a million men and a half a million women.

YOUNG FARMER SOUGHT IN TWO MEN'S DEATHS

Rockford, Ill., Nov. 8 (P)—A young farmer, disappointed in his attentions to another man's wife, killed her husband and father last night and forced her to accompany him on his wild flight of 100 miles over northern Illinois highways.

At her first opportunity, dark-haired Kathy Anderson, 26-year-old mother of three children, seized the pistol with which Glenn Marsh, 28, shot down her husband and father, and jumped from his auto.

Marsh made no attempt to continue the abduction and sped off. He and his automobile, the windows smashed in a violent struggle during the 100-mile ride with his attractive captive, were the objects of a widespread police hunt today.

Became Infatuated

Dead in the shooting were the woman's husband, Vernon, 28, a neighbor farmer of Marsh, and her father, Grant Muhrelin, 52, of Northport, Mich.

Chief Pulke Bengston of Rockford police and Sheriff John Enrietta, Jr., of Grundy county, where the woman broke away from Marsh, pieced together this story:

In July, Marsh became infatuated with Mrs. Anderson, a neighbor, but did not tell his wife, Audrey, 27, until last week. Yesterday when he learned the Andersons were planning to move from the Rockford area he left home.

Slays Two Men

Mrs. Marsh and her two children, Richard, 5, and Susan, 3, went to the home of Rockford friends to live. She also visited Anderson's parents to warn them her husband had purchased a pistol.

While supper was being prepared last night in the home of Anderson's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Anderson, there was a knock at the door. Anderson and Muhrelin, seated at the kitchen table, looked up but Anderson's warning of "don't unlock it" was too late.

Marsh burst past Anderson's mother, Gertrude, who answered the door, and fired three shots at the men. Both men rose up to lunge at Marsh, then collapsed, head to head and mortally wounded, in a doorway.

Gun Falls

Vernon's sister, Melba, dropped the plates of food she was carrying and herded the three young children, Larry, five; Karl, four, and Karen, two, to safety.

Mrs. Anderson ran to a bedroom, pushed out a window pane but was unable to escape from Marsh. Threatening "if you don't come with me, I'll kill you," Marsh dragged the woman toward the door.

When her mother-in-law tried to stop him Marsh told her "be quiet and you won't get hurt." She ignored his warnings and he pulled the trigger but the weapon had jammed. He beat her on the head with the butt, flooring her.

Woman Escapes

Marsh dragged young Mrs. Anderson out the door, shoved her into the automobile and sped away.

Shortly before midnight Marsh stopped his car at a root beer stand on the outskirts of Morris, 100 miles southeast of Rockford, to buy something to eat.

Mrs. Anderson reached into the glove compartment of the car, snatched Marsh's pistol and ran to the stand attendant. While she sobbed hysterically "my husband has been slugged," Marsh sped off to the east.

Horse Show Sales Go Over $1,000,000

Harrisburg, Nov. 8 (P)—Harness horse sales topped the $1,000,000 mark for the first time in history at a four-day standard bred horse auction which closed here last night.

Total sales for the auction reached $1,005,500, exceeding the previous high of $837,120 established at the same auction here last year. The average price of the 655 horses which went on the block was $1,512.

The Hanover Shoe Farms, Hanover, Pa., carried away the highest prices in trotting horse history for major consignments. Sale of 78 horses averaged $3,392 each.

The top price paid at the closing of the sale yesterday was $15,700 for Jeff Hanover, a two-year-old colt. The horse was bought by Mary Lou O'Connor, Norwich Downs, R. I. The auction was featured by the more than $500,000 in sales of standard bred yearlings, particularly the all-time high of $42,000 paid for a standard bred colt, White Hanover.

136 Day Strike Of Steelmen Settled

Washington, Nov. 8 (P)—A settlement of the 136-day old strike of 22,000 workers at eight Bethlehem shipyards on the Atlantic coast was announced early today after an all-night meeting of union and company officials and federal mediators.

The settlement, which must be ratified by members of the CIO Marine and Shipbuilding Union, covers all the struck Bethlehem plants except the Patapsco Scrap company, Fairfield, Md., where 900 workers are on strike.

Fumbles Costly As Maroons Drop Final To Wildcats 33-13

All of the fine football exhibited by the Gettysburg high school football team during the past month was conspicuous by its absence Friday night and the Maroons were handed a crushing 33-13 lacing by Mechanicsburg here before nearly 2,500 fans in the final game of the season for the Maroons.

The performance of the Maroons was reminiscent of the opening game and if ever a team was handed a victory that team was Mechanicsburg. The Maroons had a bad case of fumblyitis throughout the evening and no less than six were recovered by the visitors which made the going extremely easy for the invaders.

After his team had piled up a 33-0 lead midway in the third period Coach Johnny Fredericks yanked his first string lads with the result the Forney-men pushed over a pair of tallies in the final period.

Mechanicsburg kicked out of bounds on the opening boot and the Maroons took the ball on the 40. After Ridinger picked up three yards, and a fumble brought no gain, Hottle skirted right end for a first down on the Wildcats' 48. A lateral, intended for Hottle, rolled back to the Maroons' 35 where the Maroon fullback recovered. On the next play Cuthbert pounced on a fumble on the Gettysburg 34. Cuthbert raced nine yards on a lateral and Enck hit center for a first down on the 12. The Maroons braced and took the ball on the six. Hottle punted out to the 23 from where the Wildcats marched for a score. Cuthbert plunging over from the one-yard mark. A pass, Enck to G. Wagner, was good for the point.

Races 82 Yards
Gettysburg rallied briefly after receiving the next kickoff and reeled off two first downs to reach Mechanicsburg's 49. However, Bowling soon punted out on the Mechanicsburg 18.

On the next play House swept around left end, shook off several Maroon tacklers, broken into the clear at the midfield stripe and raced 82 yards for a score. Bowersox's plunge for the point was halted.

On the first play in the second period Sunday recovered a Maroon fumble on the Gettysburg 34. The Maroons, aided by a clipping penalty, took the ball on the 23 but again the locals fumbled and Singiser recovered on Gettysburg's 26. Enck and House picked up a first down on the 13. After a pass was grounded, Cuthbert pounced out four yards. The Maroons received an off-side penalty to put the ball on the four from where House rammed through center for the touchdown. Bowersox hit the line for the point.

Another fumble on the next kickoff was recovered by Sunday on the Gettysburg 39. House swept right end for a first down on the 20. Cornman raced around left end for seven and Cuthbert cracked through the line to the nine, from where Enck swept around left end for the tally. Diehl's dropkick for the point was wide.

Interception Costly
The Maroons were a decided improvement in the third period but could get nowhere. Midway in the period Bowersox intercepted a pass to give the Wildcats the ball on their own 33. A series of off-tackle plays and end runs produced three straight first downs to the 24. Enck passed to Cornman for six yards and Cuthbert picked up two yards at center. Enck then whipped a pass to Davison who was all alone in the end zone. Bowersox smacked through the line for the point.

Early in the last period Bowling, who was punting due to Hottle's injured leg, kicked to the visitors' eight-yard line. The Maroons held and House's return punt was partially blocked. Diehl, Mechanicsburg sub end, grabbed the ball and became confused and ran toward his own goal line where he fumbled with Dunkinson recovering on the five. On the following play Davison pounced on another Maroon fumble on the 14. After being set back to the nine for holding, Mechanicsburg kicked and House's boot sailed over the head of the Maroon safety man to roll to the Gettysburg 30.

Maroons Score
Dunkinson then handed the ball to Westerahl on an end-around play and the latter hurled a 27-yard pass to Donaldson on the 43 from where he scampered the remaining distance for the score. Dunkinson's pass to Westerahl was good for the point.

A little later the Maroons secured possession of the pigskin on the visitors' 44 through a punt. Westerahl swept right end for a first down on the 30. Donaldson took Dunkinson's pass for another first down on the 11. Knox and Ridinger made a first down on two plays just short of the goal line from where Dunkinson went over. A pass failed for the point.

First downs were even at 10 apiece. The Maroons completed four of nine passes with two being intercepted. Mechanicsburg made good on three of nine aerials with one interception.

The defeat left the Maroons with a mark of three wins against six defeats for the campaign.

BULLET FROSH NIP DIPLOMAT YEARLINGS 6-0

The Gettysburg college freshman football team retained its unbeaten and unscored upon record by noosing out the Franklin and Marshall yearling, 6-0, in a hard-fought game at Lancaster Friday afternoon.

Coach Roy Bloomingdale's outfit failed to display the form they showed in recording two previous victories and were outplayed by the Diplomats seven first downs to three in the first half.

The only score of the game came late in the final period when Don Young rammed through from the 10-yard line to hit pay dirt. His placement for the point failed.

In the opening period F. and M. was halted on the Little Bullets' 30 by a pass interception and again on the 16 on downs.

In the second quarter the Orange and Blue marched to the F. and M. 24 where the Diplomats braced, took the ball, and then marched to the Bullets' one-foot line. Two plays were halted and the ball rested on the five-yard line as the half ended.

Diplomats Threaten
Again in the third period F. and M. ripped through the Bullet line to advance the ball to the 14 before yielding it on downs.

The line play of the locals was particularly ragged. Swope and Shearer could perform only part-time due to injuries. Buttler received a leg injury during the contest.

Gettysburg made 11 first downs while the Diplomats compiled 10. The Bullets completed one of five passes while F. and M. made good on three of nine.

Next Friday the University of Delaware yearlings will come here for the final game for the locals.

WEST CHESTER WINS EIGHTH

Philadelphia, Nov. 8 (AP)—There'll be plenty of football on tap today for all Pennsylvanians with the big doings centering in Philadelphia where Pennsylvania and Virginia lay their unbeaten and untied records on the line at Franklin Field before a sellout crowd of 78,205 and Penn State's powerhouse eleven goes after its seventh straight win against Temple university at Temple stadium.

In games played last night West Chester State Teachers' college walloped City College of New York, 47-0 with Freshman Halfback Joe Carozzo scoring four of his team's touchdowns. It was West Chester's eighth straight win of the season. A crowd of 5,000 saw Carozzo dash 60 yards for the first score, five yards for the second and 15 yards each for his third and fourth counters to run his season's total to 13 touchdowns.

At Bethlehem the Moravian Greyhounds capitalized on a first period fumble for one score and drove 54 yards in the final period for a second touchdown to defeat Pennsylvania military college, 13-0, before a crowd of 3,500.

In a third game, California State Teachers' college won its fourth straight by reversing Potomac State of West Virginia, 26-0, before 3,000. It was Potomac's first loss of the season.

Buffalo, N. Y., Nov. 8 (AP)—Glenn S. (Pop) Warner says today's football is a better game than when his famous Carlisle Indians roared through the collegiate ranks.

The 79-year-old veteran told the Cornell club of Buffalo yesterday "the pass is the most important part of the offensive. It makes the game more uncertain, for its success runs up the score. The public likes the open game."

Philadelphia, Nov. 8 (AP)—Perris Fain, Philadelphia Athletics first baseman, is recovering from a knee operation which he believes will permit him to play better baseball next year.

Fain underwent the operation for removal of floating cartilage from his right knee at graduate hospital Tuesday. He said he expected to be recovered sufficiently to be able to leave for his west coast home within a few days.

By HUGH FULLERTON, JR.
New York, Nov. 8 (AP)—Is your hair silver? Your teeth gold? Are your eyes bleary? Do you remember when FINGERS BY JIGGERS

That's just a reminder that the big three still is in existence and playing pretty good amateur football—as today's Harvard-Princeton tussle may prove. And that all the tradition and background and color of intercollegiate football goes right back to Princeton, Yale and Harvard and a few other colleges that played in the 1870's. . . . Where else could you find old grads turning out for the "big" game and reminiscing about the bygone glories of Walter Camp, A. A. Stagg, Frank Hinkley, the Poe brothers, Snake Ames, Frank Hallowell, Tack Hardwick, Charles Brickley, etc. . . . Heck, this Army-Notre Dame affair everyone is talking about today is just a Johnny-come-lately series that began in 1913.

FINGERS BY JIGGERS
Speaking of Army vs. Notre Dame, this Dept. can't quite fathom the reasoning that the Irish have had a tough schedule and the Cadets a soft one. . . . Tossing out the two admittedly tough games, Army has faced Villanova, which has lost only one other game; Washington and Lee co-leader of the Southern conference, disappointing V.P.I., and Colorado, still in the running for the big seven title. . . . Among Notre Dame's rivals, Pitt, Iowa and Navy have won one major game apiece and Nebraska has beaten two comparatively weak sisters. Purdue has looked good lately but not until after holding the Irish to a 15-point margin.

Bi Shively, the harness-race driver, keeps a straight face when he tells this one. . . . He was warming up a trotter on a western track when he passed a fan and his feminine companion. . . . "What horse are you driving?" the railbird asked. . . . "Hoosier Girl," responded the horseman. . . . "How'd you like to mind your own business?" Came the fan's retort.

ROCKETS BEAT COLTS 27-21

Chicago, Nov. 8 (AP)—The season's longest losing streak in pro football ended last night as the Chicago Rockets scored a 27-21 triumph over the Baltimore Colts after 10 straight defeats.

The All-America conference game was played before about 5,000 fans in freezing weather last night at Soldier Field.

After spotting the Colts a 7-0 lead, the Rockets piled up 24 points in the second quarter, scoring on two fumbles and a pass interception.

Dippy Evans brushed end for 13 yards and the first Rocket marker. John Rokisky booted a 31-yard field goal following recovery of a fumble on the Colts' 17.

Another Colt fumble set up a Chicago touchdown when Billy Hillenbrand muffed a punt return on his own 2 and Max Morris scooped it up and went over. Bill Bass then ran back a pass interception from Bud Schwenk for 82 yards.

Rokisky, who converted after each touchdown, kicked another field goal, from the 35, in the final period.

The Colts' first touchdown in the opening period stemmed from a 32-yard march after capturing Ray Ramsey's fumble. Schwenk passed four yards to Lamar Davis for the score. Hillenbrand sprinted 31 yards for another Colt touchdown and Schwenk tossed 29 yards to Doc Mobley for the third.

"This community of 250 sober citizens (Police Captain Pat Mulrooney declines to estimate the number now in his custody) was all agog today over the debut last night of Mamie Shapiro who appeared at the Gas House ball in a creation the likes of which has never been seen before.

"(Capt. Mulrooney permitted himself to be quoted as saying, 'And, begorra the like won't be seen again if decent citizens have anything to say about it.')

"Miss Shapiro, one eye matching her jet black hair, was attired in electric white (for its shocking effect). Her blouse started from the neck but ran out of breath before it reached her midriff. Her dress might have been a drindl or she might have gotten the creases from Jeaning against a bar. In back was a bustle. In fact, wherever Miss Shapiro went there was a bustle as people sought to autograph her bare back.

"The piece de resistance of her costume, however, was a lavalier which looked like the crystal chandelier at the Bijou theater. As the evening wore on and Miss Shapiro warmed up it was possible to see more and more of the foundation on which this striking garment was built.

"For the benefit of photographers who crowded around, Miss Shapiro smiled and made a muscle."

Today's Talk

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS
ON GOOD TERMS WITH YOURSELF

We are the most intimate person in all the world with ourself. That is why we should always keep on good terms with ourself. No one knows us as we know ourselves. When we are wrong inside, have bitter or unkind thoughts, they harm us most of all. We radiate what we are, often without speaking a word.

If we have a difficult time getting along with ourself, how can other people enjoy us, or want us around? We can choose to make ourself the best companion in the world! By self-analysis we can learn of our likes and dislikes and make them both serve us. We can, through wide and varied reading, stimulate our mental powers, and through a love of the beautiful, and of nature, we can enlarge our spiritual world.

If we have cultivated many interests, and extended our horizon of hope, we can be quite alone and yet not feel lonely. In the gallery and library of our mind we can roam and feast upon the many examples of treasure lore. And through our memory we can recall our happiest days and make them to smile upon us again.

Being on good terms with ourself, we can meet others and be on good terms with them. A unity of experience results. Friendship is enriched, and companionship becomes a boon. "To thine own self be true, and it must follow, as the night the day, thou canst not then be false to any man." So said wise Shakespeare.

Our very health and happiness depend so much upon how we handle ourself when most alone. It is then that we germinate and create those forces that show outwardly, when among our friends, in business, and at all other times. If we deceive ourself, we cannot hope to remain open and sincere before others. Said Sir Richard Burton: "From none but self expect applause." How important, therefore, always to be on good terms with ourself.

YESTERDAY'S BOOK

The man who reads the latest book
Has merely had one backward look
And learned what wise men had to say
To guide their fellows yesterday.

The gathered wisdom of the past
Upon the printed page is cast.
But those who with the book remain
Tomorrow's fact may fail to gain.

Beyond the book the daring go,
Believing there is more to know;
Perhaps a surer, better way
Than what seemed final yesterday.

Tomorrow—and a book has died!
Out of the unknown, fact is pried
By some adventurer who unfolds
The mystery tomorrow holds.

GROSS AMAZED THAT FARMERS ASK MORE HELP

The degree to which the American farmer has come to be dependent upon the government for aid amazed Congressman Chester H. Gross of the York-Adams-Franklin district and many others of the 30 members of the House Agriculture committee who have just returned from an interrupted tour of the nation.

Stopping their tour at Temple, Texas, because of the call for the special session of Congress later this month, the Congressmen said they hope sometime next year to complete their tour of Rocky mountain and Pacific coastal states next year.

On a brief visit to The Gettysburg Times Thursday, Congressman Gross told a reporter the committee feels their trip has had a good effect in agricultural sections of the nation. "We were welcomed everywhere and we believe our visit strengthened the people's confidence in Congress."

Raps Conservation Witnesses

One annoying and time-consuming situation with which the committee members had to contend everywhere they went, Mr. Gross said, was the way in which the Soil Conservation Service "packed" committee hearings with their own witnesses urging government aid programs. "We finally complained to Washington and Secretary of Agriculture Anderson denied responsibility for the situation but the soil conservation witnesses continued to appear."

From the first hearings held early in October in New England until the last session in Texas, Mr. Gross said the committee found the farmers greatly dependent upon the government for help. "Why, one farmer didn't want to clear his land of stones without being paid by the government," he said.

When the committee visited this congressional district in mid-October they were impressed by the great amount of building underway here. "The committee saw and commented upon the fact that there was more building in this area than anywhere else on their 4,000-mile tour," Mr. Gross asserted.

Seek More Cash

The attitudes of southern farmers were expressed at a hearing held in Rocky Mount, S. C., where the Congressmen talked with tobacco growers, tenant farmers and sharecroppers. "Many were getting more than $500 per acre for their tobacco but still were complaining about the need for government support of prices," he said.

On the trip through Georgia and Alabama, a negro told Congressman Gross after a soil conservation-packed hearing: "It seems to me everybody is interested in soil conservation but I'm sorry to admit that most of those I know are more interested in the cash from the government than in improving their land."

"I have concluded," the congressman said, "after talking to sharecroppers and men in the tobacco and the cotton business that the major trouble in the South is the fact that they have no dairy products in their diet—together with the illiteracy of the average sharecropper, be he white or colored. I see no hope for the South for a period of 25 years when the old landlords and the illiterate sharecroppers will have passed on and their children will be dealing with present sharecroppers' children who will be able to read and write."

Excessive Prices

"The sharecroppers, while getting excessive prices for their products, want to buy their own land but by spring their money will all be gone because if a sharecropper has 10 children he'll buy 10 bicycles. They're the people who are buying $200 cars for $1,000."

The committee visited the drought-stricken mid-west and even in the most prosperous farming sections heard appeals for free lime and fertilizer from the government. In Iowa, they found hog production extremely low and found the price of corn and the request of the secretary of agriculture for reduced production to be blame.

"In Minnesota and Wisconsin we found a more balanced agriculture but even there the Soil Conservation witnesses were on hand to warn about loss of soil fertility unless the government terraced farms and distributed free lime and fertilizer," the congressman reported.

Big Bank Accounts

"In Kansas City the committee was amazed to hear a witness tell them he was the 'wheat king of Kansas' and then beg for lime, fertilizer and crop insurance from the government. In Texas we heard complaints about absentee landlords and poor homes but on investigation the committee found farmers more interested in heavy bank accounts with no one denying the banks were bulging with farmer money."

"Wherever I went and whenever I made a speech I impressed the farmers with the importance of having farmers solve their own problems and warned that if the farmer lets the government do it he'll have a master."

Mr. Gross said no one came before the committee with a program for price guarantees below the cost of production as a guarantee against rebounding war prices but on many occasions farmers asked a price formula to continue high prices secured for them by the Ad-

York Springs

York Springs—Ella Jean, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Lerew and a pupil at the borough school, is recovering from a painful cut on her head sustained last week when she fell at her home.

Mr. and Mrs. Mark Hinkel recently entertained the young people of the local Church of God at a Halloween party at their home.

Pvt. Lynn L. Potts, son of Mr. and Mrs. Lewis E. Potts, who enlisted in the army during the summer shortly after his graduation from the local high school, has completed his basic training at Fort Dix, N. J., and will spend some time with his parents before resuming duty at Fort Monministration (at Washington). Apparently they don't know these are war-inflated prices.

"The thrifty-hard-working farmer is generally satisfied with conditions and thinking farmers want to operate in a free economy. They don't like to be dependent on the government."

BEAUTY PARLOR TO AID INSANE

Philadelphia, Nov. 8 (AP)—Vanity which Shakespeare used as a synonym for "woman"—was put to use in an effort to help the insane at the Philadelphia General hospital.

Three frail, dark-haired women were ushered into a cheerfully sophisticated room yesterday and their eyes lighted up in appreciation as they saw once familiar things—displays of lipstick, nail polish, facial creams and hair dryers.

Two were schizophrenics, suffering from a type of mental ailment which shut them up in a world of their own. The third has a severe form of mental depression.

"I haven't had my hair done in two years," murmured the youngest of the three as she examined the beauty parlor items. "It's wonderful," she sighed.

They were the first in the hospital's feminine psychiatric ward to inspect the results of an idea conceived about a year ago by the Philadelphia Federation of Women's clubs and Allied Organizations.

Alarmed over reports of an increased number of mental cases, the women decided to do something constructive. It was concluded a beauty salon was needed for therapeutic purposes.

The federation will foot the bill for the yearly salary of a trained beautician. Mental patients in the women's ward will be given beauty treatments—worth about $3.50 commercially—at the rate of about 10 or 15 patients daily.

Two Duck Hunters Believed Drowned

Linesville, Pa., Nov. 8 (AP)—Two Mercer county duck hunters are believed to have drowned yesterday in storm-tossed Pymatuning lake when their small boat capsized during a squall.

Donald Kinsell, 26, of West Middlesex, reached shore in the drifting boat several hours after the accident. Nearly exhausted, and suffering from shock, he said the missing men were Kenneth Huff, 50, of West Middlesex, and John Aber, 45, of Sharpville.

Kinsell said he and his companions were wearing life belts when their boat overturned.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Gardner, near town, have named their infant son Riekey Eugene.

Riding with Russell

No safety ideas will work unless the driver does too.

One For The Book

When the left tail light of my car started going out every time I pressed the brake pedal at night it looked like I had a real mystery on my hands. The left stop light did not light when the brakes were applied, but why this would put out the tail light was the $64 question. Close inspection of the combination tail and stop light bulb told the story, however. It just wasn't tightly set in its socket, due to a rusted spring. A heavier current is drawn when the spotlight filament burns, and this was just enough to cause the lamp to break contact. Then the whole business went dead.

Ever since underbody undercoating came into the picture I have been a consistent booster, but I have nevertheless continued to point out certain precautions. One of the most important is to have the work done by people who are experienced in this sort of protection. Recently there have been complaints of carelessness in applying undercoating materials. Brake lines and brake backing plates should definitely not be coated, otherwise heat will be locked in by the insulation. The propeller shaft is another part that will cause trouble if coated. Since more work is required removing nuts and bolts which are coated it is important not to cover things up too much. Moderation is the keynote, as in all things. That is why service people find that a light coating of underbody material is quite as effective as a heavy dose.

Guards The Electric System
One of the truly postwar accessories does a lot of things by way of protection and will doubtless come in for a lot of discussion. It is, briefly, an extra switch in the electrical system, but it switches off everything just as effectively as disconnecting one of the battery leads. If the horns start blowing because of a short or stuck relay points, for instance, you just pull over to the curb and switch off the battery from a remote control under the instrument panel. You switch this off when leaving the car at night so that no fire can start from a short circuit. This new idea also provides a handy way of getting extra theft protection when parking the car in some unguarded spot.

Short And Sweet
If you want to hold down rust in the cooling system don't drive so fast. More air is sucked in around the water pump at speed, and air oxidizes. That means rust, sometimes even where rust inhibitor is used.

Often it isn't worn rings that encourage oil pumping so much as worn connecting rod bearings. It is important to wax immediately after polishing. If you don't the finish will dull a bit. That is why it pays to do parts of the car at a time, polishing and then waxing.

Danger In Dusk

Maybe you think you are seeing well enough when dusk has dimmed the highway but take the advice of a friend of mine and switch on those headlights, not just the parking lights. He tells me that there was a terrific crash under his car the other evening, followed by a blowout at high speed. Being expert he managed to come to a stop without careening over the road, but next time he won't try to get by without as much illumination as possible. He had just failed to see a broken bottle on the road. The left front tire kicked it under the car and across to the right rear tire which cut through and let go.

You would think that with over two million automobile club members in the United States alone the automobile manufacturers would make it a little easier to affix club emblems to the new models. As it stands you have to be something of a mechanic in order to attach an emblem and then it may look like a makeshift job. In addition, there is the problem of affixing medical insignia as well as other special markings. It would be such an easy matter for the designers to make a little provision for the convenience of those who are advanced enough to want to cooperate in the interests of better motoring. Some of America's best automobile customers are at present trying to find places to hang their club card of identification.

What's Your Trouble?
Q. Is it true that a radio suppressor on the ignition system will cut down power? There is just one suppressor on my engine, located atop the distributor. Could I get along without it? H. M. B.

A. Suppressors do affect engine performance. I took one off my car and found that the radio was not disturbed unduly. Some radio men are more skillful than others in checking into the cause of noise in the car's receiver, so consider this if you have trouble with the suppressor removed.
Q. I have been bothered with overheating ever since the cooling froze up last winter. There was no crack in the block, but I replaced the head-on the theory that it might have warped. Loosened expansion plugs were, of course, replaced. Have you any ideas about this? J. J. B.

A. There's a good chance that the block itself is warped, but check some other things such as a collapsing lower hose connection, late timing, dragging brakes, etc. Something else may have developed that isn't due at all to the freeze-up.

Q. In spite of installing all new (Continued on page 6)

USSR PARADES MILITARY MIGHT IN RED SQUARE

sary Friday amid renewed cries that London, Nov. 8 (AP)—Russia paraded her military might through Moscow's Red Square in commemoration of the Bolshevik revolution's 30th anniversary. Friday amid renewed cries that "warmongers" are calling for a campaign against the Soviet Union and "making plans for a new imperialist war."

In a special broadcast beamed directly at the United States and Great Britain, the Moscow radio quoted Marshal Nikolai Bulganin, Soviet minister of the armed forces, as saying just before the parade began to the accompaniment of martial music by massed bands, that:

"After the second world war essential changes have taken place in the international situation. As a result of the war the system of capitalism has suffered a serious loss. The forces of democracy (Communism) and Socialism have strengthened, but the forces of capitalism have weakened."

Praise for Stalin

"The successes of the democratic camp (Communists) give the warmongers no rest. Forgetting the lessons of the recent war, they are calling for a campaign against democracy (Communism), against the Soviet Union, and making plans for a new imperialist war."

Bulganin was extravagant in his praise of Prime Minister Stalin, who apparently was still on vacation at a Black Sea port, and of the armed forces of the USSR.

"The Soviet people and its armed forces, under the leadership of their leader and teacher of genius, Comrade Stalin, routed Hitlerite Germany and Imperialist Japan," he declared from the tribune atop the tomb of Nikolai Lenin.

To Struggle For Peace

The Soviet Union, Bulganin continued, "will continue to pursue its consistent policy of struggle for the peace and security of the peoples. The foreign policy of the Soviet Union finds ardent support from the whole of progressive mankind which does not want a new war and is striving for a lasting peace."

"Our glorious armed forces stand on guard for the October (1917 revolution) gains, on guard for the peaceful labor of Soviet peoples and the state interests of the motherland," the marshal declared.

"Soviet soldiers, understanding the importance and responsibility of their tasks and untiringly perfecting their military skill, are steadily mastering the military experience of the patriotic war, further advancing military science, and are gaining new achievements in the strengthening of our armed forces."

Community Property Law To Be Argued

Harrisburg, Nov. 8 (AP)—Attorney General T. McKen Chidsey will appear personally before the state Supreme Court Monday to argue that Pennsylvania's new community property law is constitutional.

The statute, designed to save married couples in Pennsylvania an estimated $100,000,000 in federal income taxes through the splitting of the family income by husband and wife, will be one of three new laws up for argument before the high tribunal next week.

Validity of the new law, in effect since September 1, was attacked in connection with a suit brought by Mark Wilcox, Jr., of Philadelphia, against the Penn Mutual Life Insurance company, in which he asked the court to order the insurance company to grant him a loan on a policy assigned to him by Shippen Lewis, also of Philadelphia.

Lewis had completed payments on the policy after September 1 with funds which under the new state law are community property and the insurance company contends Lewis was unable to assign the policy without the consent of his wife.

See Good Hunting During Bear Season

Harrisburg, Nov. 8 (AP)—Ideal hunting conditions were forecast by the state game commission for the six-day bear season in Pennsylvania which opens November 17.

"During the last several years weather conditions in some of the northern counties were so severe that sufficient hunters did not remain in the woods long enough to keep the bears on the move," the commission said, and consequently the animals have had an opportunity to propagate.

Bear hunters should abstain from road hunting and stick to the brush in trying to rout their quarry, the commission said, and advised hunters to wear plenty of bright red.

One bear is permitted to an individual and two for hunting parties of three or more.

DAVIS "RESTLESS"

Washington, Nov. 8 (AP)—James J. Davis, former senator from Pennsylvania and onetime secretary of labor who has been seriously ill since September, had a "restless day" yesterday, his physician reported.

The New England colonies in the 17th Century produced meats and cheese for the West Indies trade.

White for a Shroud

By DON CAMERON

Chapter 24

One of the lumberjacks, a tall and thickset man with black hair and whiskers, growled, "What's the idea?"

"Where's Crane, Maggie?" Worth demanded, ignoring the heckler. "We know he was here and we want him."

She said nothing, but her glare was poisonous. She was wrinkled and withered, although her age was probably not more than 45 years. Her greasy hair, streaked with white, hung in uneven strings about a broad face the color of saddle leather, and the natural stolidity of her features was overlaid with the strained, haggard look of the habitual drunkard.

"She's shy," Saunders said dryly. The deputy was watching the big lumberjack who had spoken. "You better be the same way, Mickey O'Reilly."

That individual shoved back his chair and got to his feet. His bloodshot eyes were angry and his fists balled.

Brant was nearest the man and he said, "Don't be a fool."

"Me?" The lumberjack put forth an arm to brush Brant aside. "You think I'm a fool?"

All the self-hatred and helpless rage that had been smoldering within Brant burst into flame. He stepped inside the sweeping arm and drove his fist with all his might to the bristly point of the other's chin.

Mickey O'Reilly lurched backward against the table. There was a thud and a jangle of breaking glass, and a volley of profanity as O'Reilly's four friends leaped up. Someone hit Brant behind the ear and he dropped to his hands and knees.

Everything was blurred for seconds after that. The whine of the radio singer's voice became audible again, concerned this time with a South American subject. Brant raised his head and saw that the lumberjacks had departed.

Maggie Tucker had not stirred during the fracas. She was still in her rocker, her eyes spewing hate.

As if nothing had happened, Worth repeated his earlier question while his fingers plucked at a tuft of thread where a button had been ripped from his coat.

"Where's Crane?"

The woman unbent so far as to utter two words in a deep, sullen voice:

"Don't know."

The sheriff glanced at the carpet of burlap sacking on which the table had stood. A portion of it sagged below the level of the floor as if boards beneath had given way.

"Them hoodlums like to do of wrecked the joint," Worth observed blandly. "You ought to cater to a better class, Maggie." He bent down and whipped back the burlap, revealing a square opening where a trapdoor had caved in. "Maybe we could find Crane down there, huh?"

"Don't know."

Being already on the floor, Brant rolled to the opening. "Give me your flashlight, Ed." He thrust his head and shoulders beneath the floor and swept the light about the three-foot space between them and the bare earth.

There were no foundation walls, but the deep snow walled in the shallow space completely, except that at the rear there was an oblong opening.

"A tunnel," Brant said, lifting his head. "I'm going to have a look."

"You want to take a gun along, Andy?"

"No." He lowered himself awkwardly and crouched on hands and knees beneath the beams that supported the floor.

The tunnel was about two yards long. The flashlight showed clean pine boards at the far end. The boards were those of a packing case four feet square and seven feet long, with one end knocked out. Kneeling in the cramped space, he saw that while it may have been intended as a cache for illicit liquor during the season of deep snows, it had served more recently as a makeshift shelter for a human being. Blankets, candle stubs, cigarette butts and a copy of yesterday's Reporter were there to prove it.

Extremity gripped Brant. Here was convincing evidence that Crane had not died in the pulp machinery. He had occupied the packing box as recently as last night, otherwise the newspaper would not be there. If anyone entertained the slightest doubt that Crane and not some other person had used the secret chamber, there would almost certainly be fingerprints to confound him.

He hurried back and reported his find to Worth.

"Reckon he waited till he was sure the storm was over, then hit for the woods," Worth said.

It was Saunders who suggested that if there were one such hiding place about the house there might be another. His idea was that they should search the snow in the front and back. At least, he said, they would discover some hidden liquor. Since the gallon jug in the house was broken and its foul-smelling contents dissipated, they could do worse than obtain more evidence and arrest Maggie on a whisky-selling charge, giving her the choice of standing trial or telling what had become of Crane.

And it was Saunders who chose the front yard as his territory, and had not sunk his mop handle in the snow 20 times before he shouted that he had made a find. When Brant about that result.

"You'd better arrest Rigby anyway," he said.

"I'm going to get all the information there is to be had before I arrest anybody. But I'll have the hotel watched in case Rigby tries to light out."

He sent Saunders to wake up Perrault and Sperry, and then proceeded to hunt up Lola and Quarfield. Later, taking Maggie along with them, they removed the body to Perrault's establishment on Fletcher Avenue without being seen.

As the ice turned to watery gore in the heat of Simon Perrault's stove, Sperry made a cursory examination.

"Brain mashed like potatoes," the doctor pronounced graphically. "He was beaten to death. The skull was fractured in a dozen places by something round and heavy, like the head of a hammer."

"How about the butt of a revolver?" Worth inquired.

"All right, like the butt of a revolver."

"Which was it, Maggie?" The sheriff met her unwinking eyes. "Was it a hammer or a gun?"

"Don't know," she said unemotionally.

Chapter 25

By Sunday morning the snow had ceased altogether and the sun shone for the first time in four days, turning the world into a dazzle of white. At 10, when Brant was having his breakfast, the thermometer marked eighteen above zero and was climbing steadily.

There was an air of cheerfulness abroad, a lessening of tension, as if mankind and the storm gods had signed a truce. Brant sensed it in all the people he saw and spoke with.

During the night two locomotives had driven a snowplow through from St. Ignace, clearing the tracks. Information received at the railroad station over the newly repaired telegraph line was that a train from Marquette would arrive at 12:30 on its way south, and at 5 the train from St. Ignace would bring mail and passengers from Detroit and lower Michigan. Today or tomorrow, it was said, the highways would be open from Marquette to the Straits of Mackinac and the Soo, and there would be no more isolated settlements in the Upper Peninsula.

The shooting of John MacFarlane and the murder of Charlie King had been talked over so thoroughly that no one had much to say about them today. The murder of Ralston Crane was not yet a matter of public knowledge. Simon Perrault, the undertaker and corner, had been sworn to secrecy and was keeping the corpse hidden.

People said that Crane was a storm casualty, and one fine day in spring his body would be found at the bottom of a snow drift.

The waitress who was taking Lola Tucker's place in the Northland Cafe gave Brant his check. Strolling into the lobby of the hotel, he grinned at Ray Saunders, blinking red-rimmed eyes in a chair by the window.

"No sign of him yet, Ray?"

"Why should he miss his sleep because I'm missing mine?" demanded the deputy. "I listened at his door a while back and he was sawing wood a mile a minute."

"Well, he can't sleep forever."

"Give me ten minutes, Andy," Saunders begged. "Sit down and let me shut my eyes just that long. You got nothing to do but wait for Ed."

Saunders had been stationed in the lobby at 3 a.m., as soon as Lola and Glenn Quarfield had been brought from a nearby beer garden to the courthouse. His orders were to see that Rigby did not attempt to leave town, for it appeared extremely likely that before the end of the day Worth would arrest the pudgy stranger for the murder of Crane.

"Relax," Brant said, taking another chair. "Sweet dreams."

Saunders' eyes closed and his head dropped on his chest. A gentle snore issued from his nostrils.

Lighting his pipe, Brant reviewed the crowded events of the night. The finding of Crane's body had meant only one thing to him.

"Rigby killed him!" he had exclaimed, his gaze held hypnotically by the crimson-iced corpse. "He must have. They were mixed up together in that ten-thousand-dollar blackmail scheme, or whatever it was, and they must have had an argument."

Sheriff Worth agreed that it was probable. "But if they were after Mac's money, what would keep Mac from doing this?"

"That bullet would keep him from it. Somebody was in that packing box as late as yesterday evening, reading my paper, which didn't come out till four o'clock. That somebody was Crane, because nobody else is unaccounted for. And Mac has been in bed since the first night of the blizzard."

Worth drew a hand from his mitten to rub his nose. "You and Doc Sperry know how to keep your mouths shut, but in a roundabout way I heard about Mac being out for a walk last night and coming back all tuckered, like he'd been taking strenuous exercise."

Brant was jolted. In the excitement he had forgotten Mac's midnight expedition. Now he remembered that Ella had said Mac might have gone out a minute or two before she awoke, or an hour earlier. He remembered too that Mac had said earlier that evening, "If I didn't kill Crane, I'd do it now if I had the chance."

Looking at the congealed blood that covered the dead man's face and skull, Brant reflected that either a bullet from a heavy caliber revolver, like Mac's, or a beating with its butt might have brought rings, bearings and other parts there is a bad knock in the engine of my car. Even the timing gears were replaced. How about the camshaft endplay? Wm. L. F.

A. Before considering the camshaft I think you should check the connecting rods. One may be out of line. It would cause such a knock if it were.

Q. There is quite a noise in the throwout bearing of my car. I have been told to replace it with the same kind. Correct? K. N. R.

A. That's right. Use a solid bronze pilot bearing to replace the roller bearing. The factory recommends this on your car.

Mr. Russell will answer questions regarding the safe care and operation of your car. Just address him at 254 Fern street, Hartford, Connecticut, and enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope for a personal reply. There is no charge.

Why, I could have your ma in jail most of the time if I wanted to be mean."

She gnawed her lip, considering. "All right, I'll tell you everything I know. If it helps you, all right. If it doesn't, I done the best I could. I'll go back to Thursday night when the blizzard was worst."

That night, as Brant and Worth already knew, she and Quarfield were at Oliphant's bar until about 11:30 when she started home, with Quarfield helping her. On the way they saw a man near the spot where King's body was later found—a large man who appeared to be having trouble, as if he were drunk.

"Or wounded?" Worth interrupted.

She said, "It wasn't MacFarlane, if that's what you mean. It was Al Nowka. I wasn't sure at first, but after he tried to do that to me the next day I was sure."

Quarfield left her almost as soon as they reached her house. Her mother was already in bed and Lola lost no time in getting under the blankets where it was warm.

Next morning she arose and started for work at the cafe, but the snow was so bad she returned to the house for a pair of snowshoes someone had left there. As she opened the door Crane was emerging from the trapdoor in the floor, having spent the night in the packing box under the snow.

Crane told her he was going to get some money for pretending to be dead, and had made arrangements with her mother to keep him hidden for a few days. He was going to give her mother $500 and he would give her the same amount for keeping the secret. So she told no one.

"Not even Quarfield?" asked Brant.

"Especially not him, stupid," said Lola. "You know the kind of temper he's got and how jealous he'd be if he knew Crane was under the same roof with me. Understand, there was never anything happened to me with Crane that shouldn't. I didn't see him after that first morning."

"Not Friday night when you went home?"

"No. I didn't go home till late. I was scared on account of Nowka and went to a girl friend's till I heard he was in jail."

"On Friday I heard about MacFarlane getting shot and then King was found murdered. I was kind of scared, those things happening and Crane hiding as if he might of done 'em. I didn't know what to think, so I tried not to think at all. Before long that filthy Al Nowka came in and gave me other things to think about."

She had made it sound like the truth. Brant believed her and so did the sheriff.

"I don't reckon you got much to worry about, Lola," Worth said. "I want you to stay here with your ma tonight to keep her company, and to make sure you won't tell about Crane. I'll turn you loose tomorrow. Does that suit you?"

It didn't suit her, but that was the way of it.

CONSIDER TRUTH CAMPAIGN BY US AGAINST RUSSIA

Washington, Nov. 8 (AP)—Stung by the vigor of Russia's propaganda barrage, high government officials were reported today to be considering an intensified American "truth campaign" abroad.

At the same time it was learned that the State Department is planning to ask Congress, possibly during the approaching special session, for an additional $1,500,000 for its "Voice of America" and other foreign information programs.

These disclosures came on the heels of Soviet Foreign Minister Molotov's declaration that the secret of the atom bomb "has long ceased to exist."

For Home Consumption

In the face of the attacks of Molotov, Deputy Foreign Minister Vishinsky, and the Soviet press and radio seek to prove that the United States is out to start a war against the Soviet Union and that the other countries of the world should line up with the USSR in opposition to virtually all phases of American foreign policy.

At the State Department and elsewhere in the American government this line is regarded as a three-way device to (1) rally people inside Russia behind the government; (2) frighten the smaller nations into support of Soviet foreign policy; and (3) obscure the direction and intent of Russia's own activities in such places as eastern Europe. What most worries Secretary of State Marshall and other leaders is the evidence reaching the State Department that some of the accusations which the Russians have made over and over again appear finally to be making an impression by force of repetition if nothing else.

This in turn has given rise to a growing conviction on the part of some highly-placed officials that such United States information agencies as the Voice of America radio program must take a more aggressive tack.

IN MEMORIAM

In loving memory of William J. Yone who departed this life one year ago, November 8, 1946.

Today recalls the memory of one I loved so well,
You left me with an aching heart,
The night you and I did part.
Still I can hear the echoes of your weak voice
In the stillness of the night,
How you longed to go home.

As I stood by your bedside,
I saw you calm and peaceful
Close your eyes and all was well.
So lonesome an empty chair,
Left to fight life's battles alone
Hope to meet you at that heavenly home
Where the circles are never broken.
Gone but never will be forgotten.
Sadly missed by foster daughter,
Viola E. Herman.

IN MEMORIAM

In sad memory of my dear son, Pvt. Harry J. Jeffcoat, killed in action in France, Nov. 9, 1944.

Three years have passed since that sad day
The one I loved was called away.
God took him home, it was His will
But in my heart he liveth still.

The stars are shining bright
Upon his lonely grave
And in it lies dear Harry
I loved but could not save.
His Mother.

CARD OF THANKS

We wish to express our sincere thanks and appreciation to friends and neighbors for their kindness shown during the illness and death of John G. Taylor; also for floral tributes. The Family.

MONDAY, TUESDAY

Romance and comedy activate RKO Radio's new starring vehicle for Shirley Temple, Franchot Tone, and Guy Madison, "Honey Moon," which has picturesque Mexico City as its locale.

Tone plays a career man in the American consulate in the Mexican capital, and Miss Temple is a bobby-soxer who travels there from her native Minnesota to marry her soldier-flame, Madison, who wangled a three-day pass from his post in Panama to fly up for the wedding.

The heroine's casual methods of getting what she wants, and Madison's ignorance of Mexican matrimonial laws, cause trouble right from the start, and their constant appeals to Tone to help them out succeeds in complicating the latter's own romance with a pretty Mexican heiress, with hilarious results.

WEDNESDAY

"The Red House," a chiller-diller of a psychological mystery, plays Wednesday at the Majestic theatre.

With Edward G. Robinson and Lon McCallister in the starring roles, this Sol Lesser production is a study in blood-curdling suspense. As the story of a bachelor farmer who buries a hideous secret in the secluded woods which surround his desolate land, "The Red House" offers an evening of terrific entertainment.

Robinson is cast as Pete Morgan, a wooden-legged dirt farmer who, through the course of events, deteriorates into a homicidal maniac. The two teen-age sleuths who serve as his intended victims are Lon McCallister, cast as Nath Storm, and Allene Roberts as Meg, Morgan's adopted daughter.

THURSDAY, FRIDAY, SATURDAY

Bing Crosby and Bob Hope who are seen in the all-star musical "Variety Girl."

Paramount's "Variety Girl," a romantic musical comedy boasting one of the biggest casts of stars in Hollywood history, arrives next Thursday at the Majestic theatre.

More than three dozen stars appear in "Variety Girl," a fictionalized account of the adventures of the first founding adopted by the Variety Clubs, International. This is the world-wide organization of show people which is engaged in many charitable enterprises. The picture depicts what happens to the girl when she arrives in Hollywood bent on getting into the movies.

Among the stars who play themselves are Bing Crosby, Bob Hope, Ray Milland, Alan Ladd, Barbara Stanwyck, Paulette Goddard, Dorothy Lamour, Sonny Tufts, Joan Caulfield, Elizabeth Scott, Burt Lancaster, Gail Russell, Diana Lynn, Sterling Hayden, Richard Preston, Veronica Lake, John Lund, William Bendix, Barry Fitzgerald and Spike Jones and His City Slickers.

MARRIAGE LICENSE

A marriage license was issued today by the county clerk to Frederick M. Helston, son of Mr. and Mrs. Reuben M. Helston, Highfield, Md., and Jean M. Moore, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Plus T. Moore, Hanover, R. 4.

TO ADDRESS ROTARIANS

Willard Laning, general engineer of the Inductive Equipment corporation here, will speak on "Legal Registration of Engineers" Monday evening at the regular meeting of Rotary. The session will be held in the YWCA at 6 o'clock.

Clocks

of the city of London, England. The clock was a tank into which water is poured. At the top of the tank there is a float, from which a chain runs to a shaft which turns the hands. A small petcock at the bottom of the tank releases the water, drop by drop, and as the float lowers, the hands are turned.

None of Mr. Myers' clocks are less than 100 years old, and most of them are much older. One of the most beautiful of the "grandfathers" is a clock made by Clarke, of London, which has a set of eight little bells which tinkle every quarter hour, once on the first quarter, twice at the half hour, and so on. The case itself is a beautiful example of marquetry, with the inlay work going up both sides and around the clock face.

Another noteworthy example of the cabinet-maker's art is a "grandfather" made by Alexander Grost, Conventry Place, London, probably some time before 1735. The case is a very rare lacquer finish.

Rat-Tail Hinges

One "grandfather" clock was made by Peter Schwartz when York was Yorktowne, and he had his shop there. The door in the front, which opens onto the pendulum and weights, has rat-tail hinges. Very few clocks have this type of hinge, Mr. Myers says.

Most of the "grandfather" clocks have iron weights, but one or two have lead weights. One of these was made by John Wood of Philadelphia. Mr. Myers says that Mr. Wood was known to be in business about 1770 or before.

"There is a story," Mr. Myers says, "that the colonists needed lead so badly for bullets during the Revolutionary War that the use of lead for clock weights was discontinued, and even many of the weights were melted up to make bullets. I don't know how true the story may be. At any rate, this clock escaped having its weights being made into bullets."

Many Early Makes

This clock also has several names and dates written in chalk and pencil on the inside of the weight case. Mr. Myers says he believes these represent dates on which the clocks were repaired.

Besides the Pennsylvania clocks, Mr. Myers has "grandfathers" and other types from England, Ireland, Scotland and France, and from Connecticut, a great clock-making state. Most clock-makers placed their names on their clocks, but rarely do the clocks have the dates, Mr. Myers says.

Among makers represented by the clocks in Mr. Myers' home are Bartley Norton, and John Hovell, London; Charles Smith, Dublin; Brewster and Ingraham, Bristol, Conn.; Thomas Crow, Wilmington, Del.; Thomas Whipp, Rochdale, Eng., and S. Hoadley, Plymouth, Conn.

Makers represented by Pennsylvania clocks include Jacob Stein, Northampton; Benjamin Whitman and Thomas Wilkahn, Reading; Samuel Myle, Lebanon; Jacob Hendel, Carlisle; Peter Schwartz, York; Phillip Malls, Washington, Pa., and Jacob Hostetter, Hanover.

Have Moon Dials

The "grandfather" clocks have a sun and moon which move across the top of the face above the hands, and numerals to denote day and night, and several of them have the days of the month shown. One of these "grandfathers" is novel in the respect that it has the sun and moon in the center of the face instead of at the top. Some have Roman and others Arabic numerals.

Mr. Myers has three "banjo" clocks which are antiques and of which he is very proud. He also has a French Sheffield Silver desk clock and several beautifully-designed Terry-type pillar and scroll clocks. Many of the clock cabinets are held together with wooden pins. A considerable number of them have "works" made of wood.

According to Mr. Myers, Eli Terry was the inventor of the wooden works. "Metal was scarce after the Revolutionary war," Mr. Myers says. "Terry made his first clock about 1792. It was made by hand, of course, and only a few were made each year. For the movement and dial alone Terry received $25."

Made Clock At Sea

"In 1814 Terry perfected the wood works, and Seth Thomas paid him $1,000 for the right to make them. Terry and Thomas were at one time associated in the firm of Terry, Thomas and Hoadley."

One of Mr. Myers' choice clocks is a "sharp Gothic" case, which has an interesting story connected with it. Its designer is said to have whitened the pattern out of wood on an ocean voyage from England to South America. "The trip must have taken weeks in the sailing vessels of those days, so the designer must have had plenty of time to complete his work," Mr. Myers says.

Learning to become a clock-maker was a long and tedious job, and required many sacrifices. The youthful apprentice went to live with his patron, who was required to pay him $75 during a five-year apprenticeship, in addition to supplying clothing "befitting his station in life," and his board. The apprentice, in turn, was not allowed to drink or go out with girls until he had completed his apprenticeship.

Seeks More Clocks

When his patron was ready to certify that the pupil was ready to join the select group of the clock-makers' company, or guild, he was required to build a clock of his own design. If it ran and met the approval of the company, he was "in."

Mr. Myers is constantly adding to his collection, and picking up old clocks here, there and everywhere. When he hears about one, he goes there and "dickers" for it.

Almost without exception, Mr. Myers' 100-odd clocks actually run and keep good time. As they begin striking on the hour, there is not more than two or three minutes difference in all of them.

"Of course, we cannot expect these old clocks to all keep perfect time," Mr. Myers points out. "They wear, and show the effects of heat and cold, and the wooden works clocks are affected by dampness."

If a clock won't run, Mr. Myers makes it run. He is a good clock repairman in his own right, by and through experience in fixing the timepieces which he has acquired in pursuit of his hobby.
